

LEGACY COLLECTION 2020

ANDREW ORR

Andrew Orr (b. 1969) began his artistic endeavors at an early age; Andrew Orr received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Music from Oklahoma Christian University, and furthered his studies with courses at the University of New Mexico, study with Carol McIlroy, David P. Curtis and Joseph McGurl. Orr's work has shown in many locations in the United States, has won awards with National juried exhibitions and has been featured in several one-person exhibitions. In the Northeast, Orr has had three solo exhibitions with the Southern Vermont Arts Center, Manchester, VT and displayed with national/regional exhibitions of the Oil Painters of America, the Salmagundi Club, the American Artist's Professional League and the Guild of Boston Artists. Orr is an elected member of the Guild of Boston Artists.

Andrew's work has received multiple awards, including Barbara Carter Award for Excellence from the Oil Painters of America, he is three times the winner of the Arthur T Hill Award for a Landscape from the Salmagundi Club, the Claude Parsons Award for a Landscape and the Helen DeCozen Award for a floral, both from the American Artists Professional League. Orr's painting entitled, "Peaceful Autumn" was the recipient of the Robert Douglas Hunter Award with the Guild of Boston Artists, New England Regional Painting Competition, and others.

Andrew currently lives and works out of his studio in Richford, Vermont.

"The act of painting is about expressing the joy and excitement I feel, through colors and brush strokes, after having come upon a scene that has sparked an internal, emotional response; an internal, declarative response of, "this could be a painting."